Robofriends is a web app I created using react JavaScript framework, where you can filter out different users in the page. Used an Api from Json to get the users and their information	The Stylocity website is an e-commerce web app website I cloned from their original site. The front end part of the website is done as it is responsive on both PC and Mobile view which is very user friendly, but for the back end it is still ongoing as I am connecting it to a back end server using express and PostgresSql for the database for getting the user informations and the store should only be available for users that have Login/Register to the app
